WHY ATTEND VIRTUAL EVENTS

Simply put, there is no better way for you to keep you in touch with the international education community, without having to travel.

If you haven't attended a virtual event before, here's why we think you should:

At a time when travel is challenging, provide vital updates to your partners and the wider community about upcoming developments or changes you may be facing as a business.

Meet new players within the international educational community.

In our August 2020 ICEF Agent Voice survey*, 72% of agents indicated that they are looking for and have established new partnerships with educators during COVID-19.

Cost-effectively access new partners or territories where travel for you would have otherwise proven prohibitive.

Maintain relationships with existing partners and build sustainable strategies to position your organisation for times ahead.

Improve the efficiency of your team through access to an organised meeting schedule.

Get dedicated focus for both you and your partners to develop mutual interests.

“Attending virtual meetings was often much more convenient than the booth experience because of less noise and travel time.”

by Janah Valenzuela, Bishop Blanchet High School, USA

“The experience was much better than my expectations for online sessions. I got really good new partners that we are now working with.”

by Sergey Kocharyan, London Eye ITC, Armenia
